

 LiRoyal™

LiRoyal.uk

I had my first contact with hemp in my childhood, because my grandparents cultivated many hemp plantations. The useful plant was used for the production of cords and linen, but also as animal feed for cows and horses.

Even then, I was passed on the love of plants as well as the knowledge, because this plant was important for humanity. In the 70s it was finally banned, yet many years later I learned to appreciate the value of hemp again. I have been consciously expanding my relevant knowledge about it since 1991, and in the meantime a large circle of specialists from the hemp industry has joined forces, who together contribute to the fact that the products of the LiRoyal brand are unique and of the highest quality.

Therapeutic properties of CBD

Phytocannabinoids are active compounds that occur naturally in the cannabis plant. Initially, they take acidic forms, later transforming into neutral cannabinoids, such as CBD, CBC, CBG, CBN or THC.

CBD and other plant-based cannabinoids are increasingly used around the world in both traditional and alternative medicine. They are also as an excellent supplement to your diet. Scientists from around the world have been intensively studying the properties of phytocannabinoids for many years. So far, cannabidiol is one of the best known and most lab-tested hemp compound. Research has shown that CBD has a number of health-supporting properties. Cannabidiol doesn't have psychoactive properties, isn't addictive and its completely legal and safe. Using CBD doesn't cause any serious side effects.

Cannabidiol (CBD) has many properties, including:

Immunological properties

The endocannabinoid system is made up of cannabinoid receptors and is responsible for sending signals throughout the body. It plays an important role in maintaining the body's homeostasis, which means that it's a key molecular system responsible for controlling the balance of the whole organism. As a result, CBD stimulates homeostasis and strengthens the body's immunity.

Antiepileptic properties

Scientific research on the active compound CBD shows its effectiveness in treating epileptic syndromes, which usually do not respond to standard antiepileptic drugs. Research proves that cannabidiol reduces seizures and in some cases eliminates them entirely.

Analgesic properties – pain reliever

Cannabidiol is an effective alternative for treating various types of chronic pain. CBD applied topically to the skin helps to reduce pain and inflammation. Other studies show that the mechanism of this active compound is inhibition of inflammatory and neuropathic pain, two of the most difficult types of chronic pain to treat.

Anti-inflammatory properties

CBD prevents, inhibits and heals inflammation. Research reports that cannabidiol reduces inflammation by influencing the activity of the body's endocannabinoid receptors. CBD reduces inflammation in cases of osteoarthritis. Cannabidiol can also reduce acute inflammation, which is the body's most common response to injuries.

Antifungal

CBD oxidizes fungal cells, preventing them from multiplying and expanding. Acting synergistically with CBC and CBG, it attacks fungal cells in an organized fashion, killing them by destroying cell membranes and preventing the production of ergosterol necessary for fungal growth. Without nutrients, fungal cells cannot develop and eventually die. Additionally, cannabis derived lipophilic terpenes are highly effective antifungal agents.

Anticancer properties

Scientists have noted that CBD slows the growth of tumors in various types of cancer. The National Cancer Institute says that cannabidiol can further support their absorption and enhance the effects of certain drugs used in the treatment of cancer. Thanks to its anti-emetic properties, CBD also soothes the negative effects of chemotherapy.

Neuroprotective properties

CBD alleviates disorders and stimulates the nervous system. The neuroprotective potential of cannabidiol is based on the combination of its anti-inflammatory and antioxidant properties. In the endocannabinoid system, CBD has been shown to inhibit the inactivation of endocannabinoids, thereby enhancing the action of these endogenous molecules on cannabinoid receptors. CBD acts not only through the endocannabinoid system, but also causes direct or indirect activation of the metabotropic receptors for serotonin or adenosine.

Antiallergic properties

Allergies are caused by a weakened immune system, which cannot distinguish between harmful and safe compounds, to eliminate potential dangers. If communication between cells is disrupted, it begins to identify normal substances as potential threats, releasing antibodies as a result. Research confirms the anti-inflammatory and immunosuppressive properties of CBD, which are the root cause of allergic reactions. It triggers immunosuppressive processes in an overactive immune system.

Antioxidant properties

Research shows that cannabidiol affects the body's balance and combats free radicals by modifying the level and activity of both oxidants and antioxidants. CBD, like other antioxidants, breaks free radical chain reactions by trapping free radicals or converting them into less active forms. Thanks to its antioxidant properties, CBD slows down cell aging.

Cannabidiol (CBD) use and dosage

Cannabidiol is a natural active compound found in the cannabis plant.

Thanks to its properties and wealth of medicinal benefits, CBD is becoming an increasingly popular alternative for people looking for natural solutions to their health problems. The most common form of CBD consumption is the oral application of hemp oils.

How to consume CBD correctly?

Before consumption, the bottle should be shaken so that each serving contains the same amount of active substances. Measuring the expected dose is extremely simple thanks to the hemp calculator at liroyal.pl/how-to-dose-cbd and a pipette with a scale marked in milliliters.

Hemp oil should be taken under the tongue due to the presence of many cannabinoid receptors. You should then wait approx. 1-2 minutes for the CBD to be properly absorbed. After this time, the oil can be swallowed. Cannabinoids are perfectly soluble in fats, so it doesn't hurt to take a dose of the oil with a fat meal.

CBD Gold Oils

Gold series of CBD oils is characterized by high quality and a delicate aroma. In addition to a wide range of phytocannabinoids (CBG, CBN, CBC and others), the product is enriched with additional beta-carotene content, as well as a daily dose of vitamins. Therefore, our oil is distinguished by an appetizing red color. CBD Gold is also perfect for allergy sufferers, because it's purified of plant flavonoid compounds.
